Implementation of Women and Children's Programmes

2788. SHRI MENTAY PADMANABHAM: Will the Minister of PLANNING AND PROGRAMME IMPLEMENTATION be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Planning Commission has made any assessment of various programmes concerning women and children in rural areas;

(b) if so, what are the details thereof;

(d) what suggestions have been made by the Planning Commission to tone up the implementation of the existing women and children's programmes?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF PLANNING AND PROGRAMME IMPLEMENTATION (SHRI H. R. BHARDWAJ): (a) and (b) Specific assessment of various programmes concerning women and children in rural areas has not been made by the Planning Commission. However, broad review of programmes for women and child development is a continuous process and is carried out through progress reports, reports of committees, Working Groups, workshops etc. For the formulation of the Eight Plan, Steering Groups/Working Groups were constituted to review the existing programmes and to make suggestions for the Eighth Plan. These reviews, while noting improvements in the status of women and children, have also indicated inter alia that coordination between various programmes implemented by different ministries needs to be strengthened, greater flexibility is necessary in the schemes so that they could be oriented according to local requirements, adequate supportive services need to be provided, community participation strengthened, special programmes developed for categories not adequately covered, and administrative arrangements strengthened, (c) and (d) The Eighth Plan is yet to be finalised. Improvement in implementation of programmes for women and children would require better integration, coordination and convergence of services, strengthening and consolidation of the inter 'linkages, strengthening of administrative arrangements, people's participation, training of manpower, decentralised planning and implementation, and monitoring of programmes at different levels.
